Stone Church

Designed by Kendrick Kellogg, the most famous "organic architecture" from America, Stone Church is built with mainly stone and glass.

Inspired from the world renowned master architect Frank Lloyd Wright, Kendrick incorporated the concept of five natural elements into the surroundings of the church. Based on the geographical advantage of the area, he put forward the idea of "stone, sunlight, water, green and wood" and designed this church in nature.

"Stone" represents strong men, while "glass" symbolizes the soft and gentleness of female. When light rays penetrate amongst the stone and the glass, the couple pledges their solemn oath under the sun, receiving the most genuine blessings embraced in the nature.
